CEOs Study Visit to COLAC Generate Exciting Outlook for Asian CU Movement

Four Asian CEOs: ACCU Ranjith Hettiarachchi, Federation of Savings and Credit Cooperatives of Thailand's Anan Chatruracheewin, The Cooperative Credit Union League of Bangladesh' Ratan F. Costa and Development Promotion Group's (India) Bhakter Solomon were hosted by the Confederation of Latin American Credit Unions (COLAC) for the study visit held on October 22 to 27 in Panama. Both the Asian and Latin American delegates shared experiences on the best practices in regulations, cooperative structures, financial and commercial strategies, products and services at different levels, challenges and future development plans.

The CEOs were inspired on the financial intermediation among the members of COLAC. "The study led us to explore once again the feasibility of the regional financial intermediation system for Asian credit unions. As trade barriers would be diminished or lessened in the advent of the Asian Economic Community by 2015, we are hopeful that the establishment of a regional fund in ACCU is possible," according to Ranjith. "We will support the lobbying with the Thai cooperative regulators to amend the cooperative law allowing the registration of a regional body for credit unions in Thailand," said Anan Chatruracheewin. Thailand is playing an active role in the AEC, added Anan. According to Ranjith the study visit was timely as ACCU is chartering the Blueprint for the Growth and Development of Credit Unions in Asia.

Founded on August 28, 1970, COLAC is the counterpart of ACCU in Latin America.

It has 26 member organizations from 18 countries. During the exposure, the four CEOs visited eight cooperative organizations including the regulatory body, the federation of savings and credit cooperatives in Panama, primary credit unions, and insurance cooperative.

ACCU will in turn welcome the COLAC delegation in Thailand tentatively in January 2014. 2013. The first exchange study visit is sponsored by Proxfin, the international network of thirty community finance institutions and Développement international Desjardins (DID) whose members have made a commitment to work towards the dual objectives of financial performance and social impact which they consider inseparable. ACCU and COLAC are members of Proxfin.
